

Climate Change and Nutrition

Climate patterns have a cascade effect on the food system, decreasing yields, impacting food distribution, and changing household purchasing. All of this, in turn, impacts food prices, farm income and country export rates. As a result, inflation, rural outmigration, and increased economic pressure combine to threaten food insecurity.

Climate change and nutrition are closely linked.

